Weblinks: Technology Resources (SRLN 2015)

The following is a list of organizations geared toward technology/IT support in the non-profit and legal aid space. Inclusion does not reflect endorsement.

Idealware

Idealware, a 501(c)(3) nonprofit, provides thoroughly researched, impartial and accessible resources about software to help nonprofits make smart technology decisions. Link: http://www.idealware.org/

Innovation Network

Nonprofit organization that builds the evaluation capacity of nonprofits and grantmakers. They provide consulting, training, and Web-based tools for nonprofit program planning and evaluation. Link: http://www.innonet.org/

LStech/LSNTAP

LSTech/LSNTAP helps nonprofit legal aid programs improve client services by providing technology training, maintaining a library of resources/information, creating online tools, and hosting community forums such as the LStech email list. Link: http://www.lstech.org/

LawHelp Interactive Resource Center

LawHelp Interactive was developed to make implementing document assembly initiatives easier and less costly for legal aid organizations as well as pro bono and court-based access-to-justice programs. Participating programs use HotDocs Corporation's HotDocs Professional, and optionally the Center for Access to Justice and Technology's A2J Author, to create online forms and documents. Templates are uploaded to the LawHelp Interactive server and made available to advocates, pro bono volunteers, and self-represented litigants through legal aid and court websites.

Pro Bono Net, in close collaboration with Ohio State Legal Services Association and the Legal Services Corporation, operates LawHelp Interactive and provides training, shares best practices, and provides the technical infrastructure necessary to offer online document assembly content.
