

Course/Training: Best Practices in Handling Cases with Self-Represented Litigants (San Diego 2016)

Event Details

March 7 - 10, 2016 | 8am-5pm EST

This course, provided by the National Judicial College (NJC) and held in San Diego, CA, on March 7 - 10, 2016, is designed for judges who decide on civil and criminal cases involving SRLs and who need information about issues dealing with management of those cases involving SRLs. After attending this course, judges will be able to move a self-represented party civil docket expeditiously, use settlement techniques in cases involving SRLs, summarize the limits on assisting self-represented parties, apply innovative methods and strategies to ensure that SRLs have proper access to the justice system, identify when an indigent SRL may be entitled to court-appointed counsel, and describe best practices for managing these sometimes difficult cases, including cases requiring an interpreter.

For more information on this course and registration details, please visit the NJC course page at the link below. This course will also be offered by NJC October 31 - November 3, 2016 -- for more information, visit the NJC course page.
