

Article: Practical Advice from the Trenches (Wilson & Hutchins 2015)

This article, by Judge Wilson and Judge Hutchins of Baltimore, discusses the value of neutral engagement in easing the tensions for the judge in the SRL courtroom. They write, "Fortunately, through a concept called neutral engagement, judges now have a way to accommodate the needs of self-represented litigants while maintaining neutrality throughout the process." It is published in Court Review, published by the American Judges Association, and is part of an entire issue of dedicated to issues involving SRLs.
